Subject: Miss you!

Hi, how have you been? It has been almost one month since you moved to London. How is your new school life? Do you enjoy playing tennis there? We all miss you a lot, including* Mr. Smith. Now, in his history class, we are learning about British history. It is very interesting to learn the history and culture of Great Britain. I really want to visit some places, such as Bath.*

I heard that people in Britain enjoy tea time several times every day. Could you tell me what it is like? Do you also enjoy it every day?

Love,

Yukiko

Subject: Thank you!

Hi! I'm very glad to hear from you. My new life in London is very exciting. The lessons at school are not easy, but I have a lot of friends to help me. After school, I play tennis at a local tennis club.

Yes, British history is really interesting. Great Britain has four parts: England, Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland. Each part has its own history and uniqueness.

Here, people enjoy tea many times a day. Have you ever heard the word 'elevenses'? This is the tea time around 11 in the morning. In my school, students eat biscuits and enjoy talking over cups of tea around 11. I love the tea time between the classes!

Sincerely,

Judy

Color Talks

What is your favorite color? Some people like bright colors such as red, yellow, or orange. Others like dark colors such as black, brown or gray. Colors can have special effects* on people's minds and feelings, and also interesting functions* in our society and culture.

People in different cultures have different images about colors. In western countries, black is related to death. However, in some countries in Asia, people think of white for death. These cultural differences may come from their images about death.

Colors have effects on our bodies and feelings. When people eat food in blue dishes, they eat less than they eat in common white dishes. People eat more when they use warm color dishes, like orange. So, some people use blue dishes to keep from eating too much and to stay healthy.

Many companies use color effects for their businesses. You can find them on TV commercials or websites. For discount sales, they often use red to get people's attention.* Companies also use special colors for their logos* to create images for people. For example, some banks use green for their logos. The color can help people think about the safety of the bank.

In everyday life, we don't often think deeply about colors. However, colors have meaning in our lives and produce different effects in our lives.
