Subject: Exchanging Shoes

I am a customer of your store, and I'm very sorry to tell you about one of your products. I bought a pair of shoes at a special price at your store.
My favorite shoe brand is "Mikee Shoes", which you sell at your stores all over America. They are expensive for me, but I have wanted some for a long time, and luckily on that day, December 2, I bought them at a 40% discount from the usual retail price.
However, when I opened the box at home, I found that they were both left shoes. I tried one on at the store, but it was only the left shoe, so I didn't notice the other one. Could I exchange the shoes by mail? I am so busy these days, so I cannot go back there soon.

LETTER FROM BEST FRIEND

Cathy and Angie were good friends. Every morning Angie and Cathy walked to school together. They often went out for shopping after school together and they went to church every Sunday wearing the same dress, too.

One day, Cathy was hit by a car and got seriously injured. The doctor said to her mother, "She will not die, but she has to stay in bed for a few weeks. She cannot talk with any visitors until she gets better."

A week later, Cathy felt very lonely in the hospital. She thought, "Angie is very kind and she is my best friend. I want her to come and see me." However, Angie did not come to see her at that time. She wanted to see her and talk to her, but she had to stay home and study for *the final-term tests. Cathy was shocked to hear that her friend wouldn't come and became angry. She became angrier and angrier. "She *no longer cares about me," she thought and became sadder and sadder.

Angie was worried about Cathy, and at last, she got a good idea. She said to her mother, "Cathy is getting sad because I have not visited her in the hospital. Next Saturday, when we have finished our final-term examinations, I will go to see her, but now I must write her a letter."

Then she wrote this letter: "In lunch one victory end. Young old uniform." Her mother saw the letter, and she said to her, "What a strange message you have written! Nobody can understand it." Angie answered, "No problem. It's OK. She will be able to read it."

When Cathy got the letter, she was very happy. She looked out of the window and said, "She still loves me. She has not forgotten me. We are best friends!"
